Black, red, mixed, boxed, framed. This paragraph is teal and it is long enough to run over several lines and over the end of the page, so that the colour stack carries the colour onto the next page where the paragraph goes on and on with more words and more words and more words and more words and more words and more words and more words and more words and more words and more words and more words and still more words until it ends. Back to black.